

Terms and conditions for e-statement service

- I hereby finally and entirely declare to accept receiving my periodic account statements, kept with the bank, on my email, mentioned in this application, online. My signature on this declaration is considered acknowledgement of the soundness of dispatching and receiving them, taking into account all legal consequences, as the particulars stated in such statements shall be considered as binding evidence. I hereby waive my right to object to any particulars stated therein after the lapse of thirty days to the date of dispatching thereof, whether or not my receipt thereof is established.

- I declare to be solely entitled to use the above email and that I am responsible for preserving the particulars and information stated therein.

- I declare to acquit the bank and waive my right to have recourse against it in case of any hacking to my above email or in case of any failure of the internet service that may result in disclosing the data or the account or any detriment that may afflict me as a result. I undertake to furnish the bank with a temporary alternative email in case of any breakdown occurring to my email. If I fail to serve this notice, all correspondences on the email determined beforehand shall be sound and legally enforceable and acquitting the bank in this concern.
